

The Things I've Seen

I've seen things cold machines and ignorance that was so keen true justice was contravened

Yet I grieve the days that pass so quickly to twilight but why does it seem the things some so long to believe in Are things they leave then they grieve

All this rage and all this rave in which they're so engaged, to be makes a sad and lonely seen

Despite all these things I swear that I stand here undaunted though All these blank minds surround me and stare through me wonderless
the Things I've Seen
had turned on me but now I see everything

Loneliness
Hopelessness and all of this carelessness a world so cruel in avarice

Despite all these things I swear that I stand here undaunted Though I've seen the things that only a movie should show men well I've seen these things that I just can no longer stand for Despite these things
The Things I've Seen
I stand stoned and serene cause I'm alright
just my plight
